Save time when stashing the Santa

CHARLESTON, W.Va. -- When it's time to pack up holiday décor, there's no need to crush the crèche or to trash the tree. Experts offer these tips for the oft-dreaded task of putting it all away.

Clean, then organize

Professional organizer Rita McGhee of Charleston suggests cleaning all of your holiday decorations before storing them.

First, take a vacuum to your artificial tree prior to storage. "Think of all the dust it collects as it sits in your house for a month or more!" Large duffel bags are a terrific alternative if the branches are too large to fit in a traditional plastic bin, and easier to carry than the large, original boxes.

The organizational expert said outdoor decorations, including inflatables, should be wiped clean with a damp cloth and thoroughly dried before storage. A mild soapy solution can be used on soiled areas or on items that touch or go into the ground. She cleans natural or dried wreaths or fragile ornaments and figurines with a small, soft paintbrush. Ornaments with intricate details or those made from cloth can be dusted with a gentle burst from canned compressed air (commonly used for computer keyboards).

paper and place the ornaments in the box. Remember to start saving the contents of your home shredder early in the season, or shred newspapers right before packing. "All ornaments aren't the same size or shape, so those sectioned boxes aren't always the best fit," McGhee said.

Storing artificial wreaths? McGhee suggests this technique: Slide the wreath's hanging loop over the hook of a sturdy hanger. Slide a plastic trash bag over the wreath like a shirt, allowing the opening to be at the bottom. Snip a small 1/4-inch hole at the sealed end of the bag to allow the hanger hook to slide through. Use a twist-tie or pull the drawstring to close the bottom of the bag. Hang the covered wreath on a hook or closet rod.

If there's no place to hang wreaths, place them in a box with a large sheet of cardboard between them.

Next, organize the items before storing.

Store children's artwork in large envelopes or in collapsed boxes. "There's no need to buy an artist's portfolio," McGhee said. "Just flatten a box and keep the paper items inside."

Light strands should be wrapped around a used wrapping paper roll or flat piece of cardboard. Remember to snip small slots to slide in the beginning and ends of each strand.

To avoid wrapping each ornament individually, fill a box with shredded

Finally, McGhee suggests renting items like linens, dishes, glasses and tables during the holidays.

"Don't store it! At our house these things are usually used only once a year," she said. "If you're using them more often, storage is OK, but if it's really only at the holidays, then consider rentals."

McGhee said after the holiday is the best time to see what's falling apart. Pitch, don't pack, items that can't be repaired.

"But sometimes people throw away things that don't have to be tossed," McGhee said. "Felt and plastic bows, with light cleaning, can be saved. If you can't find the original packaging for the static clings that decorate windows, put them on waxed paper." Place the sheets of clings inside an envelope, file folder or cardboard taped together on two sides to help them stay flat during storage.

The governor's choice

Rebecca Reed of New Haven first visited the Governor's Mansion as a Girl Scout growing up in Kanawha County. Now she decorates the mansion for the holidays. She owns an interior decorating shop in Point Pleasant, Custom Design Ltd., and for the holiday season, she decorates homes, businesses and, most prominently, the Governor's Mansion, with her two full-time and two part-time employees.

She pointed toward garlands spewing from large black plastic trash bags on the floor of the governor's dining room. "Those things were not stored properly," she said. "Bags just don't work. Next year, we'll use boxes or plastic totes for those items."

Having a display with over 350,000 lights I can tell you the easiest way to store your mini lights is in a ball. They never tangle and use 50% less room than the method described in this article.

Simply take the female plug end and hold it in the palm of your hand. Wrap the lights around the palm of your hand. When you are about half way finished slip your hand out of the lights and then wrap across the loops. Take the male end and slip under the lights to hold into place. You can get 50 strands of 100 count minis in a standard plastic bin.
